God can use our discomfort for His own purpose, like in the example of St. Patrick returning to Ireland after his escape from slavery. What are some other examples (either from the Bible or of people you know) of God using a uncomfortable circumstance to inspire His people to action on behalf of His kingdom?

The centurion at Jesus's cross declares that He was "the son of God" after Jesus dies. What do you think he saw during Jesus's trial and crucifixion that made him believe something so incredible? Read Mark 15:16-32 for the narrative of what the centurion witnessed and discuss how that impacted his declaration.

Based on what was taught in the message, what was the significance of the centurion—of all people Jesus encountered—making this claim?

Who is the most unlikely person you've ever seen God work in?
